4f--Time doesn't matter here, but how CHIEF WALLABEE did it, coming of a giant work, you didn't expect Mott to let him roll, in fact the opposite. Worked with STEEL Alvarado had his feet in the dashboard, and gigantic hold thru the lane. Has looked the part I am telling this you guy is ready

• 7 - DANON BOURBON - the unknown factor to many, dissected his Japanese efforts, but first off all he was a very good prospect coming of the Keeneland sale, you can see his up close and personal walking video from the sale. He was flawless. In his race, he has gone 9 furlongs or longer in all 3 starts, and carried 126. He has a lot of speed and was making his own trip, good horses don't need to overcome adversity they find themselves making a comfortable trip because of they are. In his last win he top speed of 60 km/h which is 37.8 Mph and in the stretch again hit a 60 km/h (37.8MPH), spurt inside the final furlong. That's fast after posting a 60km/h early. He is a very good horse, and looks the part on the track, he looks fresh. 4-STAR-WORK (49Δ) off our morning observations. We rated a recent work a 3-STAR-WORK (49Δ) off our morning observations. Post Position wins less than 10%.

• 8 - SO HAPPY (25Δ) - He is such a laid back horse, he does things at his pace, and then race day he is a different animal. The public can't deal with a laid back horse, they don't know how to quantify that as they energy from horses 24/7. TOP Two DELTA based on the best latest effort. We rated a recent work a 3-STAR-WORK (49Δ) off our morning observations. Post Position wins less than 10%. Third best Pace ZETA Fig (F3).

• 15 - EMERGING MARKET (25Δ) - Really can't fault him, other than only 2 races in career, but it speaks volume that Flavien Prat got off COMMANDMENT (26Δ) to ride here, he has his pick of the litter and here he comes to Chad. He is by far the best rider right now. TOP Two DELTA based on the best latest effort. We rated a recent work a 3-STAR-WORK (49Δ) off our morning observations. Recently worked off-site, there is no statistical advantage to train at the host track. Second best Pace ZETA Fig (F2).

• 18 - FURTHER ADO (22Δ) - He is a good horse., we loved him as a 2yo, and has been terrific especially at Keeneland. He has won at CD, last fall. Great rider on board, Cox's best chance. TOP Two DELTA based on the best latest effort. We rated a recent work a 3-STAR-WORK (49Δ) off our morning observations. Second Fastest Closing ZETA Fig (FF2).

• 12 - CHIEF WALLABEE (26Δ) - he's trained great, check, looks wonderful, check, but my question is he really a ten furlong horse, people talk of maturity and he does have a slowly maturing pedigree, but he hung in both of his Florida races. He hung in FOY with a short stretch and once again, didn't take THE PUMA (29Δ), shortening strides and faltering in the last 16th in the Florida Derby, both occasions he hung. His maiden win he flew thru the wire full of run. I think he is a miler, one turn horse right now, he will mature but not today? Blinkers or no blinkers/. This horse is within 3 points of TOP Three DELTA 4-STAR-WORK (49Δ) off our morning observations. We rated a recent work a 3-STAR-WORK (49Δ) off our morning observations. Second Fastest Closing ZETA Fig (FF2).

• 1 - RENEGADE (31Δ) - I can't knock his works, but I see a light horse in the flesh at Churchill Downs. He is not carrying that big barrel that Todd horses carry. He was being stubborn and not switching leads when asked while galloping slowly. Need to monitor that. 3-STAR-WORK (49Δ) off our morning observations. Post Position wins less than 10%. Recently worked off-site, there is no statistical advantage to train at the host track. The Fastest Closing ZETA Fig (FF1).

• 14 - POTENTE (28Δ) - We rated a recent work a 3-STAR-WORK (49Δ) off our morning observations. Recently worked off-site, there is no statistical advantage to train at the host track.

• 9 - THE PUMA (29Δ) - they pushed the envelope, working hard between the Tampa Bay Derby and Florida Derby, he is not conformationally put together right, and these types of horses tend to be more milers and sprinters, as their stride lacks stability as they are tiring going longer. He lost the Florida Derby because his stride fell apart, due to his flaws, allowing COMMANDMENT (26Δ) to gut him out. They are giving him no works the last two weeks, because they are attempting to freshen him up. Post Position wins less than 10%.

• 6 - COMMANDMENT (26Δ) - Flavien Prat made a post Florida Derby comment that he didn't like his chances early as he felt the colt wasn't traveling well. He doesn't travel well, looks like he is traveling over potholes. Prat got off, the Florida Derby winner, to ride EMERGING MARKET (25Δ), tells you all you need to know. Also the Florida Derby comes up slow on our numbers. This horse is within 3 points of TOP Three DELTA 3-STAR-WORK (49Δ) off our morning observations. Post Position wins at least 15%. Second Fastest Closing ZETA Fig (FF2).

HORSE DYNAMICS by Peter Denk

- R8 Great White (#10) - Big, tall gangly type pressed the pace for 6 furlongs and faded badly in his dirt debut in the Blue Grass Stakes (G1). Probably the biggest physical specimen in the field, I think he looks best stalking/pressing the pace, and they will probably be aiming for some kind of outside stalking trip from this post. I don't like him too far back or having to interpret too much, and that part is a problem in this stimulus-rich race. Great White has decent cruising speed with a big stride. Gate efficiency has improved this year, but his emotional energy remains leaky. Burnout is a big concern for him in the Derby environment. Still has a lot of things to clean up, and he's questionable on class and surface in the KY Derby.
- R12 Renegade (#1) - Watch Renegade's maiden (DQ) win over Paladin. It might be the best tape in this year's class in terms of what it takes to win a KY Derby. Renegade is not deterred when held up in traffic and closes space with a strong forward-target draw. He has moved forward at age 3. Both of his races this year he came home with fierce, sub-.12 final furlong. He has a competitive, efficient mind and he should enter the Derby a confident horse. Rail draw presents an additional challenge, but Renegade has the mentality and behavioral traits of a horse who can win the KY Derby from off the pace. He's a deep closer but not totally asleep at the start, so there is some competitive energy to work with here in terms of getting a little position. Irad was on Pletcher's Known Agenda (9th) and Mo Donegal (5th), both from the rail in their Derby appearances, so he's had some practice runs. Renegade has a classic Kentucky Derby-winning profile. Showed up at Churchill late in the Derby process, and reportedly battling foot issues.
- R12 Albus (#2) - Albus has a balanced dynamic with good competitive mental traits and efficiency. This is a versatile, athletic profile, but he is taking a major step up in class from that weak Wood Memorial field he beat. He did some good things in the Wood, taking dirt then splitting horses, but the final time was slow. And he worked really hard to do it, flipping leads late and drifting out as he finished his final three furlongs in :38-4. Facing tougher while putting more distance on his plate looks like a double-whammy.

- R12 Intrepido (#3) - Gritty, intense-minded horse holds some internal pressure just under the surface. That pressure can be used athletically but it can also boil over into body control issues. He breaks from the gate like a shot though not always in a direct line. On the fast-rhythmed side, Intrepido wants to get out and cruise near the front of the herd. Hung very wide last time in the Santa Anita Derby and faded late. Intrepido hasn't shown any forward development from his 2yo campaign, and the way he expends his emotional energy, he looks iffy trying a classic distance right now.
- R12 Litmus Test (#4) - Baffert brings the blinkers back on Litmus Test after a failed experiment without them in the Arkansas Derby, where he broke poorly and faded. A fast-rhythmed speed type who wants to go long, Litmus Test was a very good gate horse when wearing blinkers and a shadow roll in his first six races. He has good cruising speed, but he lacked that additional gear it takes to win at the highest level during what was a solid 2yo campaign. There has been no forward development at age 3. He can be a pace factor here, but anything more would be a surprise.
- R12 Right To Party (#5) - Deep stretch runner rallied for second in a slowly run Wood Memorial to get here. He has a gritty, methodical mental profile. Watch how hard the rider had to work to get him going in the Wood. Then he swung way outside in the lane, a little wild/sloppy with his body control but he showed some good fortitude to get second. Rider needs to use the crop to keep him moving forward from point to point. It's not super efficient but he is trying hard even when making mistakes such as weaving or sticking on the wrong lead.
- R12 Danon Bourbon (#7) - Japanese invader has looked sensational in three starts in Japan, including a going away 3 ½-length win in the Fukuryu Stakes. He is an imposing specimen who loOKs like he has a big stride and good speed. The personality and movement are athletic and competitive. Danon Bourbon shows good gate efficiency, jumping out into the new environment with intensity, ears pinned. In all three starts he has gotten to the lead or secured wide position just off the lead with open space in front of him. He quickly settles into a high-end cruising gear. I think that is his natural pattern of motion – to lead the herd or to be able to see the front, plotting his takeover. If allowed to cruise the way he did in Japan, 10 furlongs will be no problem for Danon Bourbon. He has been finishing with great energy and efficiency. So, the tape is very impressive. But a few things to keep in mind: The KY Derby will be Danon Bourbon's first try at the graded stakes level. That's a giant class rise. It is also likely the Derby will be run at a different pace/intensity than he has ever experienced. That is a big hurdle for a horse who wants to be in charge almost from start to finish. The other thing we don't know is how he will handle traffic or a different herd position if he can't get the clean trips he got in Japan. The resume is incomplete, but there are signs of big talent/potential here. This is how you want them to look on the way up.
- R12 So Happy (#8) - After winning his two first races sprinting in really impressive fashion, So Happy battled for the lead and faded to third in his first two-turn race, the 1 1/16-mile San Felipe. Distance concerns Connections proceeded to the 1 1/8-mile Santa Anita Derby, where rider Mike Smith rode So Happy as a pace stalker—a style that seems a better fit for his slightly laid back mentality—with good results. So Happy trains in blinkers reportedly to keep him focused forward and trying, that tells me going directly to the lead probably doesn't come natural. Allowed to conserve a little energy while still utilizing his impressive tracking gears, So Happy sat just behind the leaders then outfinished Potente and won going away in 1:49.01. He held a beautiful line through the wire of the Santa Anita Derby. Mind-to-body fluency looked great at the end of that 1 1/8-mile test. There is an interesting dichotomy here between how So Happy acts in the morning vs. the athleticism, forward nature and fluidity that emerges in his races. Another furlong in a bigger, tougher field represents another challenge, as there is probably not a lot of margin for error on energy distribution. Derby atmosphere nerves/emotional energy burn also is a concern. Mike Smith knows this horse very well. Expect him to try to play the stalk and pounce game once more.
- R12 The Puma (#9) - Competitive-natured horse that carries an edgy environmental awareness to him at all times. I have him as a tactical closer because he has a pretty high-revving rating gear and he is ready to go forward as soon as the jockey asks. And they have been asking The Puma to pounce early in a lot of his races. He has been practicing a sustained closing move that, if timed correctly, can play really well in a race like the KY Derby. He just narrowly got caught by Commandment in the Florida Derby when perhaps launching a hair early. No doubting the athletic mental profile, but I do see two concerns with asking The Puma to go 10 furlongs. His front-end action/conformation is a little funky, and the longer they go, the more chance that can affect efficiency. And as game as The Puma has been, he does show little lapses in body control in late stretch of some of his races, drifting laterally. He definitely gives it his all, and those path diversions are likely a result of him over-intensifying, but asking him to extend another furlong can't be taken for granted.
- R12 Wonder Dean (#10) - Agile, stretch-running colt ran 1 1/8 miles four times at age 2 in his native Japan. He was twice stakes placed (inconsistent in the gate but had the makings of some nice sequences and looked like he wanted more ground). Took the Middle East Road to the Derby. The 1-turn mile Saudi Derby proved too sharp for him though he broke fine and ran a useful staying-on 4th. That tightened him up for Dubai where he put it all together in the UAE Derby (G2) breaking well again and running down a loose-on-the-lead Six Speed. Wonder Dean did all the dirty work and there was big gap back to Pyromancer, a Godolphin colt who had beaten Wonder Dean last year in Japan. I think Wonder Dean is an athletic-minded horse on a positive development pattern at age 3. He faces a big class rise here, and the start remains an X factor under Derby pressure, but I'm looking for another good closing sequence from him at the least and he should like 10 furlongs.
- R12 Incredibolt (#11) - If you can excuse his 25-length no-show in the Holy Bull Stakes in his 3yo debut, Incredibolt's development pattern looks really promising. His body control stands out in a bunch of phases—out of the gate, when in traffic, and when he launches into his drive. This is an athletic but patient horse who builds intensity over time in motion. He has been finishing strongly at 8, 8.5 and 9 furlongs. I see signs of a horse who could perform at 10 furlongs. There are two big holes in the resume however. His wins in last fall's Street Sense at Churchill Downs and this year's Va Derby at Colonial were against much easier competition. He's totally untested against the class level he faces Saturday, and his speed ratings are undeniably light. But, this is what horses that step up in class and perform well look like. Attractive but a longshot.
- R12 Chief Wallabee (#12) - Bill Mott is adding blinkers to the thrice-raced Chief Wallabee. How blinkers affect horses has been a study of mine for the last 15 years, and the good news is blinkers often help horses with Chief Wallabee's specific Horse Dynamic traits. After sitting behind horses for much of the Florida Derby, Chief Wallabee was hesitant to take that open lane between The Puma and Commandment. His head cocked to the outside, he stayed in the fight but he was still mentally working out the battle when he crossed the line third, beaten a half-length. The sequence ended without a breakthrough. Chief Wallabee flashed major talent in Jan. 10 debut win going 7 furlongs over The Puma. Good speed, smooth transitions, and nice body control as he skipped home the final furlong in :12 flat. Chief Wallabee is a fairly fast-rhythmed horse and has some speed. He has been taught to wait and that could serve him well when adding blinkers (so his energy distribution doesn't get out of whack), but he also might be capable of a more speed-oriented approach. Blinkers can make you focus, but won't carry you further. Blinkers in the Derby are a gamble. Anything that changes a horse's sensory perception risks a multiplier effect in the stimulus-rich Derby atmosphere. They can change a horse's running style and how it expends its emotional energy—a huge deal in the Derby. Chief Wallabee's distance aptitude remains open to interpretation. His most visually impressive race was at 7 furlongs but he has loOKed promising going long. I don't think he was quitting mentally at the end of the 1 1/8-mile Fla Derby, and there's been no weakness in his internal fractions to this point. Ceiling remains as high as anyone in this class, and this looks like a horse with a chance for a more protracted growth pattern. In that regard, the Derby has come up early on his development timeline.
- R12 Potente (#14) - Game colt has worn blinkers and a shadow roll from day 1. Baffert is among the best with sensory equipment, and he has had this horse tuned in pretty well in that regard from day 1. His tape is very clean. He is a good gate horse and shows efficient, controlled athletic movement overall. I like the versatility he showed winning the San Felipe. He stalked up close from 5th place and won that race by staying on and galloped out a block ahead. Pedigree looks promising for 10 furlongs, tape says maybe. He went to the lead in Santa Anita Derby and was second best to So Happy. Potente needs to improve in the Derby but he could still have upside in lifetime start 4. That front-running SA Derby effort should have him fully tightened, and I expect them revert to pace-stalking tactics here. ***

- R12 Emerging Market (#15) - Handy, tactical closer with quiet body language, has done nothing wrong in two lifetime starts. Stalked a healthy pace in the Louisiana Derby and showed good agility and space awareness moving out to the 4 path when Prat pushed the button. He was eye-to-eye with Pavlovian, who set the pace and probably had the tougher trip, for a long time and only prevailed by a head. But I like how he handled himself with Pavlovian drifting out into him. Emerging Market was not compromised by the contact. It looked similar to his 3/4 –length victory over the good maiden Power Shift in the debut. With the win in the 1 3/16 La Derby, he's pretty much proven at the distance. We don't have much to go on in terms of how he will handle KY Derby traffic or a change in herd position, as he has had two pretty clean trips. He's been using his superior athleticism, body control, and efficiency in narrow victories vs. lesser. Promising start to his career, but this KY Derby comes up very early to his development curve. ***
- R12 Pavlovian (#16) - Game colt has run 10 times, seven of those against fellow California-breds beginning all the way back last May going 4 ½ furlongs. You don't see many Derby horses coming out of those races. Wore blinkers for his first six races—all sprints. O'Neill experimented with blinkers off, but Pavlovian hopped at the start and was dead last early before rallying for 4th in the 1-mile King Glorious. His gate efficiency was even worse in the Cal Cup Derby when rearing after the start. He needs the blinkers, and O'Neill re-applied them in the 1 1/16-mile Sunland Derby and this started a new growth curve for Pavlovian, who apparently wanted to route all along! He pressed the pace of Express Kid and won a head-bobbing photo at Sunland. Stretching out to 1 3/16 miles in the Louisiana Derby (G2) he broke well from the rail and set a fast, pressured pace, then gave the rallying Emerging Market all he could handle in a physical stretch battle he lost by a head. There are some gaps in Pavlovian's sensory system, and it's possible they re-open in the KY Derby atmosphere, but O'Neill has him tuned in pretty good now with the blinkers back on. This is an improving, tactical runner who will need to do even better as he steps up in class once more. Longshot but deserves a little more respect than he is getting.
- R12 Six Speed (#17) - UAE Derby (G2) runner-up had a nice campaign in Dubai that saw him continually stepping up in class while defying perceived distance thresholds, winning at 6, 7 then 8 furlongs. He might be this field's best gate horse. Six Speed loves to run and is a naturally expressive speed type. Had things all his way when alone on the lead in the UAE Derby but he didn't have enough to hold off Wonder Dean, who emerged his only challenger at the quarter pole. Hard to endorse adding any more ground here as he looked cooked 100 meters from the wire in UAE, and the early pace competition gets much tougher in Louisville. Six Speed knows only one mode.*
- R12 Further Ado (#18) - Talented, youthful horse with a lighter frame but good tracking gears and a love for open space. Flipped leads late in the monster Blue Grass win going 1 1/8, but I believe that was in reaction to the whip from Irad. My distance read here is neutral to positive. Looked spectacular in his two big wins at Keeneland when he cruised behind an average pace and all Horse Dynamic challenges fell away. When that happens, Further Ado gets to move into his happy zone. In terms of Kentucky Derby credentials, I don't rank those big daylight wins as highly as the speed figure makers do. His other two route races – a workmanlike win in the KY Jockey Club Stakes at Churchill and a 2nd behind The Puma in Tampa were very solid performances. But close-space battles, especially when he fails to separate vs. closers, won't play to the strength of his long speed. Further Ado is a decent gate horse who quickly finds his cruising gears at the start. Johnny V, who picks up the mount from Irad, is a perfect fit for this horse and #17 is not a terrible post for this psychology. He can try to incrementally advance out in the clear.
- R12 Golden Tempo (#19) - When you drill down on the psychology of deep closing horses, a lot of the time you are going to find a flaw in their sensory system—something that bothers them that shouldn't, something they struggle to diagnose—that leads to quirky or less-than-efficient motion, often at the start of a sensory sequence. Breaking from the gate is a prime example of a sensory sequence—the gate pops and the horses are thrust into herd motion together. It's a new environment that needs interpreting very quickly. Horses with sensory gaps are more likely to delay or move in an uncontrolled manner when the gate pops. Golden Tempo has a habit of slow starts or even if he breaks OK, he might find trouble right after the start. Horses with mental issues are sometimes looking for a reason to take back, especially in early traffic. It takes Golden Tempo a long time to get going, but once he reaches a drive, he has some good moments, but I still see lapses in what is supposed to be his best skill- the finishing move. Devaux added blinkers for the Louisiana Derby, and again there were good and bad flashes. Note how he had a direct path to rally on the outside of Emerging Market in the lane but instead of just taking forward space he drifted six paths down to the inside!?! That was a red flag for me. Golden Tempo has some physical talent and stamina, but he is still figuring it out mentally. Horses with sensory efficiency issues are generally up against it in the KY Derby.
- R12 Fulleffort (#20) - Methodical, grinding type who builds momentum and intensity through time in motion. Not a nimble horse, not an easy horse to control, but he is very powerful and gritty and he has a solid forward drive once he gets going. Had a couple really strong finishes on the turf as a 2-year-old at KD and Kee, and that's where his turn of foot has looked best so far. He can be a little sluggish out of the gate. This year he has been running at Turfway Park on synthetic against much lesser Horse Dynamic horses than he faces here, but he does seem to be peaking at the right time, posting a sharp, going-away win in the Jeff Ruby last out. The Derby distance should be no problem. Surface is a question, particularly in relation to kickback. Rugged, tank of a horse also has to deal with the #19 post.
- R12 Great White (#21) - Big, tall gangly type pressed the pace for 6 furlongs and faded badly in his dirt debut in the Blue Grass Stakes (G1). Probably the biggest physical specimen in the field, I think he looks best stalking/pressing the pace, and they will probably be aiming for some kind of outside stalking trip from this post. I don't like him too far back or having to interpret too much, and that part is a problem in this stimulus-rich race. Great White has decent cruising speed with a big stride. Gate efficiency has improved this year, but his emotional energy remains leaky. Burnout is a big concern for him in the Derby environment. Still has a lot of things to clean up, and he's questionable on class and surface in the KY Derby.
- R12 Ocelli (#22) - Also eligible is still a maiden but earned his way here with rallying third-place finish in a slowly run Wood Memorial. They've experimented with and without blinkers and it's been a mixed bag either way. They took the blinkers off in the Wood and he ran his natural stretch-running style and produced a decent wide rally to get into contention. From there he hung on his left lead and did not show great efficiency when caught by Right to Party for second. Ocelli is still struggling with his sensory reads but clearly has some physical talent. The KY Derby would be extremely challenging for a horse like this from the mental standpoint.*
- R12 Robusta (#23) - Also eligible might inject a little tactical speed into the race were he to draw in. Speed type earned Derby points with an OK second in the San Felipe when adding blinkers for the first time. The blinkers got a little more out of him, but I didn't like how they affected his awareness and fluidity in his first two tries with them. He was drifting inward and looked a little lost in stretch of that race when Potente loomed up. Robusta took a step backwards in the Santa Anita Derby, when he was done after 7 furlongs. Blinkers gave him a one-race boost, and that is fairly common to see. O'Neill could forge on with the blinkers or take them off and restart his growth curve. Either way I think Robusta needs easier and shorter than this. **
- R12 Corona De Oro (#24) - Also eligible earned a few Derby points in the Grade 3 Lexington Stakes. After setting an average pace he couldn't quicken for home in the short stretch but stayed on OK for third. After two sprint tries at age 2 he has done some nice developing at age 3 and looks at home on the lead going two turns. Don't think he would be a factor yet at this level however even if he were to draw in.

Workouts: For those who want exclusive information, the Racingwithbruno team provides clients with independent, qualitative observations of works at primary tracks.

Our system is based on four stars, each chosen with care:

★☆☆☆ — A work that happened. Nothing more, nothing less, even forgettable.

★★☆☆ — Some effort. Perhaps something to note. But tread carefully, we wanted to see more

★★★☆☆ — Now we're getting somewhere. The horse is showing signs—poise, purpose, potential.

★★★★ — This is the one. The movement, the focus, the professionalism. The kind of work that demands your attention and possibly, your investment.

The ZETA figure takes into account the best early pace figure from strictly the last two races on today's surface and coverts, in connection with the surface, the early pace Delta on the main track. The Turf Zeta figure is a last fraction derived from strictly the last two races on the turf and makes the number, as in the final time Delta fig and Zeta Early Pace fig, the lower the better. DELTA Figures: DELTA, the fourth letter in the Greek Alphabet and the name of our figure that combines four handicapping factors that can lead to a winning performance. Three years in the making, the DELTA Figures are a combination figure that controls for the conditions of today's race. The lower the number the better chance for success in the field.

HORSE DYNAMICS by Peter Denk

R8 Great White (#10) - Big, tall gangly type pressed the pace for 6 furlongs and faded badly in his dirt debut in the Blue Grass Stakes (G1). Probably the biggest physical specimen in the field, I think he looks best stalking/pressing the pace, and they will probably be aiming for some kind of outside stalking trip from this post. I don't like him too far back or having to interpret too much, and that part is a problem in this stimulus-rich race. Great White has decent cruising speed with a big stride. Gate efficiency has improved this year, but his emotional energy remains leaky. Burnout is a big concern for him in the Derby environment. Still has a lot of things to clean up, and he's questionable on class and surface in the KY Derby.

R12 Renegade (#1) - Watch Renegade's maiden (DQ) win over Paladin. It might be the best tape in this year's class in terms of what it takes to win a KY Derby. Renegade is not deterred when held up in traffic and closes space with a strong forward-target draw. He has moved forward at age 3. Both of his races this year he came home with fierce, sub-:12 final furlong. He has a competitive, efficient mind and he should enter the Derby a confident horse. Rail draw presents an additional challenge, but Renegade has the mentality and behavioral traits of a horse who can win the KY Derby from off the pace. He's a deep closer but not totally asleep at the start, so there is some competitive energy to work with here in terms of getting a little position. Irad was on Pletcher's Known Agenda (9th) and Mo Donegal (5th), both from the rail in their Derby appearances, so he's had some practice runs. Renegade has a classic Kentucky Derby-winning profile. Showed up at Churchill late in the Derby process, and reportedly battling foot issues.

R12 Albus (#2) - Albus has a balanced dynamic with good competitive mental traits and efficiency. This is a versatile, athletic profile, but he is taking a major step up in class from that weak Wood Memorial field he beat. He did some good things in the Wood, taking dirt then splitting horses, but the final time was slow. And he worked really hard to do it, flipping leads late and drifting out as he finished his final three furlongs in :38-4. Facing tougher while putting more distance on his plate looks like a double-whammy.

R12 Intrepido (#3) - Gritty, intense-minded horse holds some internal pressure just under the surface. That pressure can be used athletically but it can also boil over into body control issues. He breaks from the gate like a shot though not always in a direct line. On the fast-rhythmed side, Intrepido wants to get out and cruise near the front of the herd. Hung very wide last time in the Santa Anita Derby and faded late. Intrepido hasn't shown any forward development from his 2yo campaign, and the way he expends his emotional energy, he looks iffy trying a classic distance right now.

R12 Litmus Test (#4) - Baffert brings the blinkers back on Litmus Test after a failed experiment without them in the Arkansas Derby, where he broke poorly and faded. A fast-rhythmed speed type who wants to go long, Litmus Test was a very good gate horse when wearing blinkers and a shadow roll in his first six races. He has good cruising speed, but he lacked that additional gear it takes to win at the highest level during what was a solid 2yo campaign. There has been no forward development at age 3. He can be a pace factor here, but anything more would be a surprise.

R12 Right To Party (#5) - Deep stretch runner rallied for second in a slowly run Wood Memorial to get here. He has a gritty, methodical mental profile. Watch how hard the rider had to work to get him going in the Wood. Then he swung way outside in the lane, a little wild/sloppy with his body control but he showed some good fortitude to get second. Rider needs to use the crop to keep him moving forward from point to point. It's not super efficient but he is trying hard even when making mistakes such as weaving or sticking on the wrong lead.

R12 Danon Bourbon (#7) - Japanese invader has looked sensational in three starts in Japan, including a going away 3 1/2-length win in the Fukuryu Stakes. He is an imposing specimen who loOKs like he has a big stride and good speed. The personality and movement are athletic and competitive. Danon Bourbon shows good gate efficiency, jumping out into the new environment with intensity, ears pinned. In all three starts he has gotten to the lead or secured wide position just off the lead with open space in front of him. He quickly settles into a high-end cruising gear. I think that is his natural pattern of motion – to lead the herd or to be able to see the front, plotting his takeover. If allowed to cruise the way he did in Japan, 10 furlongs will be no problem for Danon Bourbon. He has been finishing with great energy and efficiency. So, the tape is very impressive. But a few things to keep in mind: The KY Derby will be Danon Bourbon's first try at the graded stakes level. That's a giant class rise. It is also likely the Derby will be run at a different pace/intensity than he has ever experienced. That is a big hurdle for a horse who wants to be in charge almost from start to finish. The other thing we don't know is how he will handle traffic or a different herd position if he can't get the clean trips he got in Japan. The resume is incomplete, but there are signs of big talent/potential here. This is how you want them to look on the way up.

R12 So Happy (#8) - After winning his two first races sprinting in really impressive fashion, So Happy battled for the lead and faded to third in his first two-turn race, the 1 1/16-mile San Felipe. Distance concerns Connections proceeded to the 1 1/8-mile Santa Anita Derby, where rider Mike Smith rode So Happy as a pace stalker—a style that seems a better fit for his slightly laid back mentality—with good results. So Happy trains in blinkers reportedly to keep him focused forward and trying, that tells me going directly to the lead probably doesn't come natural. Allowed to conserve a little energy while still utilizing his impressive tracking gears, So Happy sat just behind the leaders then outfinished Potente and won going away in 1:49.01. He held a beautiful line through the wire of the Santa Anita Derby. Mind-to-body fluency looked great at the end of that 1 1/8-mile test. There is an interesting dichotomy here between how So Happy acts in the morning vs. the athleticism, forward nature and fluidity that emerges in his races. Another furlong in a bigger, tougher field represents another challenge, as there is probably not a lot of margin for error on energy distribution. Derby atmosphere nerves/emotional energy burn also is a concern. Mike Smith knows this horse very well. Expect him to try to play the stalk and pounce game once more.

- R12 The Puma (#9) - Competitive-natured horse that carries an edgy environmental awareness to him at all times. I have him as a tactical closer because he has a pretty high-revving rating gear and he is ready to go forward as soon as the jockey asks. And they have been asking The Puma to pounce early in a lot of his races. He has been practicing a sustained closing move that, if timed correctly, can play really well in a race like the KY Derby. He just narrowly got caught by Commandment in the Florida Derby when perhaps launching a hair early. No doubting the athletic mental profile, but I do see two concerns with asking The Puma to go 10 furlongs. His front-end action/conformation is a little funky, and the longer they go, the more chance that can affect efficiency. And as game as The Puma has been, he does show little lapses in body control in late stretch of some of his races, drifting laterally. He definitely gives it his all, and those path diversions are likely a result of him over-intensifying, but asking him to extend another furlong can't be taken for granted.
- R12 Wonder Dean (#10) - Agile, stretch-running colt ran 1 1/8 miles four times at age 2 in his native Japan. He was twice stakes placed (inconsistent in the gate but had the makings of some nice sequences and looked like he wanted more ground). Took the Middle East Road to the Derby. The 1-turn mile Saudi Derby proved too sharp for him though he broke fine and ran a useful staying-on 4th. That tightened him up for Dubai where he put it all together in the UAE Derby (G2) breaking well again and running down a loose-on-the-lead Six Speed. Wonder Dean did all the dirty work and there was big gap back to Pyromancer, a Godolphin colt who had beaten Wonder Dean last year in Japan. I think Wonder Dean is an athletic-minded horse on a positive development pattern at age 3. He faces a big class rise here, and the start remains an X factor under Derby pressure, but I'm looking for another good closing sequence from him at the least and he should like 10 furlongs.
- R12 Incredibolt (#11) - If you can excuse his 25-length no-show in the Holy Bull Stakes in his 3yo debut, Incredibolt's development pattern looks really promising. His body control stands out in a bunch of phases—out of the gate, when in traffic, and when he launches into his drive. This is an athletic but patient horse who builds intensity over time in motion. He has been finishing strongly at 8, 8.5 and 9 furlongs. I see signs of a horse who could perform at 10 furlongs. There are two big holes in the resume however. His wins in last fall's Street Sense at Churchill Downs and this year's Va Derby at Colonial were against much easier competition. He's totally untested against the class level he faces Saturday, and his speed ratings are undeniably light. But, this is what horses that step up in class and perform well look like. Attractive but a longshot.
- R12 Chief Wallabee (#12) - Bill Mott is adding blinkers to the thrice-raced Chief Wallabee. How blinkers affect horses has been a study of mine for the last 15 years, and the good news is blinkers often help horses with Chief Wallabee's specific Horse Dynamic traits. After sitting behind horses for much of the Florida Derby, Chief Wallabee was hesitant to take that open lane between The Puma and Commandment. His head cocked to the outside, he stayed in the fight but he was still mentally working out the battle when he crossed the line third, beaten a half-length. The sequence ended without a breakthrough. Chief Wallabee flashed major talent in Jan. 10 debut win going 7 furlongs over The Puma. Good speed, smooth transitions, and nice body control as he skipped home the final furlong in :12 flat. Chief Wallabee is a fairly fast-rhythmed horse and has some speed. He has been taught to wait and that could serve him well when adding blinkers (so his energy distribution doesn't get out of whack), but he also might be capable of a more speed-oriented approach. Blinkers can make you focus, but won't carry you further. Blinkers in the Derby are a gamble. Anything that changes a horse's sensory perception risks a multiplier effect in the stimulus-rich Derby atmosphere. They can change a horse's running style and how it expends its emotional energy—a huge deal in the Derby. Chief Wallabee's distance aptitude remains open to interpretation. His most visually impressive race was at 7 furlongs but he has loOked promising going long. I don't think he was quitting mentally at the end of the 1 1/8-mile Fla Derby, and there's been no weakness in his internal fractions to this point. Ceiling remains as high as anyone in this class, and this looks like a horse with a chance for a more protracted growth pattern. In that regard, the Derby has come up early on his development timeline.
- R12 Potente (#14) - Game colt has worn blinkers and a shadow roll from day 1. Baffert is among the best with sensory equipment, and he has had this horse tuned in pretty well in that regard from day 1. His tape is very clean. He is a good gate horse and shows efficient, controlled athletic movement overall. I like the versatility he showed winning the San Felipe. He stalked up close from 5th place and won that race by staying on and galloped out a block ahead. Pedigree looks promising for 10 furlongs, tape says maybe. He went to the lead in Santa Anita Derby and was second best to So Happy. Potente needs to improve in the Derby but he could still have upside in lifetime start 4. That front-running SA Derby effort should have him fully tightened, and I expect them revert to pace-stalking tactics here. ***
- R12 Emerging Market (#15) - Handy, tactical closer with quiet body language, has done nothing wrong in two lifetime starts. Stalked a healthy pace in the Louisiana Derby and showed good agility and space awareness moving out to the 4 path when Prat pushed the button. He was eye-to-eye with Pavlovian, who set the pace and probably had the tougher trip, for a long time and only prevailed by a head. But I like how he handled himself with Pavlovian drifting out into him. Emerging Market was not compromised by the contact. It looked similar to his 3/4 –length victory over the good maiden Power Shift in the debut. With the win in the 1 3/16 La Derby, he's pretty much proven at the distance. We don't have much to go on in terms of how he will handle KY Derby traffic or a change in herd position, as he has had two pretty clean trips. He's been using his superior athleticism, body control, and efficiency in narrow victories vs. lesser. Promising start to his career, but this KY Derby comes up very early to his development curve. ***
- R12 Pavlovian (#16) - Game colt has run 10 times, seven of those against fellow California-breds beginning all the way back last May going 4 1/2 furlongs. You don't see many Derby horses coming out of those races. Wore blinkers for his first six races—all sprints. O'Neill experimented with blinkers off, but Pavlovian hopped at the start and was dead last early before rallying for 4th in the 1-mile King Glorious. His gate efficiency was even worse in the Cal Cup Derby when rearing after the start. He needs the blinkers, and O'Neill re-applied them in the 1 1/16-mile Sunland Derby and this started a new growth curve for Pavlovian, who apparently wanted to route all along! He pressed the pace of Express Kid and won a head-bobbing photo at Sunland. Stretching out to 1 3/16 miles in the Louisiana Derby (G2) he brOkE well from the rail and set a fast, pressured pace, then gave the rallying Emerging Market all he could handle in a physical stretch battle he lost by a head. There are some gaps in Pavlovian's sensory system, and it's possible they re-open in the KY Derby atmosphere, but O'Neill has him tuned in pretty good now with the blinkers back on. This is an improving, tactical runner who will need to do even better as he steps up in class once more. Longshot but deserves a little more respect than he is getting.
- R12 Six Speed (#17) - UAE Derby (G2) runner-up had a nice campaign in Dubai that saw him continually stepping up in class while defying perceived distance thresholds, winning at 6, 7 then 8 furlongs. He might be this field's best gate horse. Six Speed loves to run and is a naturally expressive speed type. Had things all his way when alone on the lead in the UAE Derby but he didn't have enough to hold off Wonder Dean, who emerged his only challenger at the quarter pole. Hard to endorse adding any more ground here as he looked cooked 100 meters from the wire in UAE, and the early pace competition gets much tougher in Louisville. Six Speed knows only one mode.*
- R12 Further Ado (#18) - Talented, youthful horse with a lighter frame but good tracking gears and a love for open space. Flipped leads late in the monster Blue Grass win going 1 1/8, but I believe that was in reaction to the whip from Irad. My distance read here is neutral to positive. Looked spectacular in his two big wins at Keeneland when he cruised behind an average pace and all Horse Dynamic challenges fell away. When that happens, Further Ado gets to move into his happy zone. In terms of Kentucky Derby credentials, I don't rank those big daylight wins as highly as the speed figure makers do. His other two route races – a workmanlike win in the KY

Jockey Club Stakes at Churchill and a 2nd behind The Puma in Tampa were very solid performances. But close-space battles, especially when he fails to separate vs. closers, won't play to the strength of his long speed. Further Ado is a decent gate horse who quickly finds his cruising gears at the start. Johnny V, who picks up the mount from Irad, is a perfect fit for this horse and #17 is not a terrible post for this psychology. He can try to incrementally advance out in the clear.

- R12 Golden Tempo (#19) - When you drill down on the psychology of deep closing horses, a lot of the time you are going to find a flaw in their sensory system—something that bothers them that shouldn't, something they struggle to diagnose—that leads to quirky or less-than-efficient motion, often at the start of a sensory sequence. Breaking from the gate is a prime example of a sensory sequence—the gate pops and the horses are thrust into herd motion together. It's a new environment that needs interpreting very quickly. Horses with sensory gaps are more likely to delay or move in an uncontrolled manner when the gate pops. Golden Tempo has a habit of slow starts or even if he breaks OK, he might find trouble right after the start. Horses with mental issues are sometimes looKing for a reason to take back, especially in early traffic. It takes Golden Tempo a long time to get going, but once he reaches a drive, he has some good moments, but I still see lapses in what is supposed to be his best skill- the finishing move. Devaux added blinkers for the Louisiana Derby, and again there were good and bad flashes. Note how he had a direct path to rally on the outside of Emerging Market in the lane but instead of just taking forward space he drifted six paths down to the inside!?! That was a red flag for me. Golden Tempo has some physical talent and stamina, but he is still figuring it out mentally. Horses with sensory efficiency issues are generally up against it in the KY Derby.
- R12 Fulleffort (#20) - Methodical, grinding type who builds momentum and intensity through time in motion. Not a nimble horse, not an easy horse to control, but he is very powerful and gritty and he has a solid forward drive once he gets going. Had a couple really strong finishes on the turf as a 2-year-old at KD and Kee, and that's where his turn of foot has looked best so far. He can be a little sluggish out of the gate. This year he has been running at Turfway Park on synthetic against much lesser Horse Dynamic horses than he faces here, but he does seem to be peaking at the right time, posting a sharp, going-away win in the Jeff Ruby last out. The Derby distance should be no problem. Surface is a question, particularly in relation to kickback. Rugged, tank of a horse also has to deal with the #19 post.
- R12 Great White (#21) - Big, tall gangly type pressed the pace for 6 furlongs and faded badly in his dirt debut in the Blue Grass Stakes (G1). Probably the biggest physical specimen in the field, I think he looks best stalking/pressing the pace, and they will probably be aiming for some kind of outside stalking trip from this post. I don't like him too far back or having to interpret too much, and that part is a problem in this stimulus-rich race. Great White has decent cruising speed with a big stride. Gate efficiency has improved this year, but his emotional energy remains leaky. Burnout is a big concern for him in the Derby environment. Still has a lot of things to clean up, and he's questionable on class and surface in the KY Derby.
- R12 Ocelli (#22) - Also eligible is still a maiden but earned his way here with rallying third-place finish in a slowly run Wood Memorial. They've experimented with and without blinkers and it's been a mixed bag either way. They toOK the blinkers off in the Wood and he ran his natural stretch-running style and produced a decent wide rally to get into contention. From there he hung on his left lead and did not show great efficiency when caught by Right to Party for second. Ocelli is still struggling with his sensory reads but clearly has some physical talent. The KY Derby would be extremely challenging for a horse like this from the mental standpoint.*
- R12 Robusta (#23) - Also eligible might inject a little tactical speed into the race were he to draw in. Speed type earned Derby points with an OK second in the San Felipe when adding blinkers for the first time. The blinkers got a little more out of him, but I didn't like how they affected his awareness and fluidity in his first two tries with them. He was drifting inward and looKed a little lost in stretch of that race when Potente loomed up. Robusta took a step backwards in the Santa Anita Derby, when he was done after 7 furlongs. Blinkers gave him a one-race boost, and that is fairly common to see. O'Neill could forge on with the blinkers or take them off and restart his growth curve. Either way I think Robusta needs easier and shorter than this. **
- R12 Corona De Oro (#24) - Also eligible earned a few Derby points in the Grade 3 Lexington Stakes. After setting an average pace he couldn't quicken for home in the short stretch but stayed on OK for third. After two sprint tries at age 2 he has done some nice developing at age 3 and loOKs at home on the lead going two turns. Don't think he would be a factor yet at this level however even if he were to draw in.

Our system is based on four stars, each chosen with care:

★☆☆☆ — A work that happened. Nothing more, nothing less, even forgettable.

★★☆☆ — Some effort. Perhaps something to note. But tread carefully, we wanted to see more

★★★☆☆ — Now we're getting somewhere. The horse is showing signs—poise, purpose, potential.

★★★★ — This is the one. The movement, the focus, the professionalism. The kind of work that demands your attention and possibly, your investment.

The ZETA figure takes into account the best early pace figure from strictly the last two races on today's surface and coverts, in connection with the surface, the early pace Delta on the main track. The Turf Zeta figure is a last fraction derived from strictly the last two races on the turf and makes the number, as in the final time Delta fig and Zeta Early Pace fig, the lower the better.
